ABSTRACT:

Today, women's empowerment is not confined to urban working women, even women in remote villages are now increasingly making their voices heard loud and clear in society. Educated or not, they are asserting their social and political rights and making their presence felt, regardless of their socio-economic backgrounds. It is true that women, by and large, do not face discrimination in society today. But unfortunately, most of them face exploitation and harassment, which can be of diverse types: emotional, physical, mental, and sexual. In this paper, an attempt is made to analyze the impact of women's economic independence on ensuring gender equality.

Key Words: Empowerment, equality, discrimination.

Introduction

It is observed that women are increasingly gaining control over their lives and making their own decisions with regard to their education, career, profession, and lifestyle. With the steady increase in the number of working women, they have gained financial independence, which has given them confidence to build their own identity. They are successfully taking up diverse professions to prove their abilities and efficiencies. But while doing so, women also take care to strike a balance between their commitment to their profession as well as their home and family. They are playing multiple-roles of a mother, daughter, sister, wife, and a working professional with remarkable harmony and ease. With equal opportunities to work, they are functioning in a spirit of teamwork to render all possible co-operations to their male counterparts in meeting the deadlines and targets set in their respective professions. Against this background, the paper will focus on the following objectives:

1. To study the importance of economic independence for women.
2. To observe the impacts of economic independence.

Abstract

Terrorism means the use of extreme public violence to achieve a particular goal or to force someone to do something. Basically terrorists attempt to create political and social change by threatening the welfare of their opponents.

North East India has immense potentialities for industrial development being covered with international border. It is enriched with a large bucket of natural resources, wide open spaces and the power of a huge manpower. But it lacks the basic component for industrial development i.e. foreign investment. One of the basic causes of this leakage is insurgency or terrorist problems. Investors have a fear of losing their money or even their lives. The incidence of kidnapping or killing business persons, entrepreneurs, land lords etc. by terrorist create a deep fear in the minds of outsiders. Among the tea producing states of India, Assam is well known internationally since long back. The state is continuously dominating the country's tea map by producing almost half of country's total tea production. It has the potentiality for making a positive economic impact ensuring new employment opportunities, proper utilization of local resources and source of revenue. Tea industry, one of the major sources of revenue and employment generator of India as well as Assam is also suffering from this terrorist problem. Kidnapping or killing of tea garden owner and managers is burning news in news channels and papers. Moreover; conflict between labour and management is also a common issue in tea gardens. In these contexts this paper will highlight the impacts of terrorism on the tea industry of Assam and measures to overcome the problems.

Introduction: Terrorism is the premeditated use or threat of use of violence by individuals or sub national groups to obtain a political or social objective through the intimidation of a large audience, beyond that of the immediate victim. Although the motives
